Narberth Proceeds to Get Ready
For the Fourth of July

Now that the Memorial Day observance is over, a program by the American Legion that never fails to provide an impressive day of recollection for the precious dead who served their country's cause, this month of June will get the town ready for the Borough's far-famed Independence Day celebration.

For many years Narberth has been the mecca for thousands from the city and the adjoining countryside when comes the Fourth of July, for here it is that the time-honored customs continue to prevail. Let us hope that this town will never get as blasé about the Nation's Birthday as seems to be the case in most of the neighborhoods about us, for patriotic ardor can harden as well as the physical ones, and in both cases the end result is not so good.

This year, as last, Councilman William P. Davies will be the General Chairman, with Councilman Sterling M. Chain as Chairman of "Narberth Day," the designation for the variety of attractive activities which are conducted by the local women's organizations, including all of the churches. Hovering over the day-time pattern is the spirit of Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller, who first conceived the idea and who brought renown to the Borough because of the skilled manner in which she directed these affairs until her retirement last year. She is now the Honorary Chairman.

The Night Chairman will be William S. Howard, who provided such a grand fireworks show last year, and who, it is reported, is arranging a pyrotechnic display for this year which will transcend all previous exhibits.

The money will come, as usual, from the residents, who need no persuasion to be generous, and the nice part about it is that even those who are not here on the holiday feel impelled to contribute in order to insure the town tradition. That kind of viewpoint is a refreshing and wholesome thing.

It is also understandable that there are some who feel that money should not "go up in smoke," as they express it, and with that idea there can be no quarrel. The donations made by such friends are reserved for use in another manner; improvements on the Playground, and also, it is reported, a contribution may be made by the Committee to help the Medical Corps pay for that new ambulance which has proved so useful for it. That latter disbursement, however, has so far been discussed only as a suggestion.

This distribution of the collection lets everybody come in, those for and those against fireworks, and if each household does its fair part, observing a minimum of $2, there will be ample for everything, fireworks, additions to recreational facilities, and perhaps a nice little gift for the Medical Corps, which seems to be the one local organization which has never received any part of the holiday fund's surplus.

A formal request for general cooperation will go through the mails shortly, with checks to be sent, as has been the case for what seems to be a hundred years, to Carl B. Metzger, Jr., Treasurer, at the National Bank of Narberth. Those who respond quickly will be acclaimed as best benefactors, and it will be agreed that the men who are charged with the numerous details of an important occasion are entitled to the prompt support of the community they seek to serve, for the whole spirit of the good enterprise is lessened when the funds needed must be unduly urged.

As usual, Our Town will print the names of those who donate $2 or more for the day's expenses, a procedure adopted, not merely to publicize the patrons for their financial aid, but chiefly to establish a roll of sponsors who have kindred thoughts on the value of maintaining memories of what brought this Republic into being. It should always be remembered that this neighborhood was hallowed in a particular manner by the history which was made hereabouts in the struggle for freedom and which gives the local celebration its own special significance.

The Committee has requested that this call shall be made and so from now on let the money flow and let good nature and whole-hearted help be the neighborhood theme as once again the citizens assemble to pay tribute to a Nation born of sacrifice and now risen to be the bounteous benefactor of all mankind.

Trick of WeekLost Pet Is Found on Top of 3 Story House

A six month old collie, Ginger, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sunkenis, of 306 Hathaway Lane, Wynnewood, wandered from his home Saturday morning and kept his 8 year old master Jackie Sunkenis and his parents in a quandary for several hours.

They scanned every conceivable place where a young puppy might be hiding. Then Sunday morning, S. Richard Nusbbaum, of 306 Kent Rd., Wynnewood, who wasn't even looking for him happened to glance upward as he was walking past the home of Capt. and Mrs. Ruben Reeder, of 105 Mansion Lane, Wynnewood.

There was the rain drenched Ginger perched over the ridge pole on the roof of the Reeder's three-story house. Nusbbaum notified Lower Merion Police who called the Penn Wynne Fire Co. Firemen raised a long ladder and restored Ginger to her master.

No one can determine how Ginger got on top of the Reeder's house. There are no trees nearby and no child could have possibly scaled the roof and placed the dog on the gable. Ginger's escape will remain a mystery to all unless Ginger suddenly develops a voice as well as the ability to scale three-story houses.

Explains Action
Of MicrowavesBell Co. Engineer Speaks
To B-C Rotary Club

A demonstration of the behavior of microwaves, showing how it is possible to transmit telephone conversations and television programs from hilltop to hilltop through the air, was given before the Bala-Cynwyd Rotary Club, by Dr. John K. Lamond, Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania engineer, at the Overbrook Country Club, last Tuesday.

As compared with waves that bring ordinary radio programs, which are about a quarter of a mile long and vibrate several hundred thousand times a second, the microwaves are only about 1.3/16 inches long and vibrate at a frequency of 10 billion times a second.

By means of a large metal lens, which focuses in a manner very similar to an ordinary glass lens, these waves can be concentrated into a narrow beam and "aimed" through the air from one relay station to another. Over these beams of microwaves, telephone conversations and television programs can be sent.

"Only about one watt of power—approximately the power needed to light a pocket flashlight bulb—is sufficient to bridge a 30-mile gap between relay stations," Dr. Lamond said.

"The Bell System's first long distance microwave radio relay system was placed in operation between New York and Boston in November, 1947. Construction is now underway on another such system from New York to Chicago, which will tie in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo and other points along the route."

William S. Howard, chairman of the fireworks show, stated this week that his committee is devising a display of a most unusual order, a number of set-pieces will be specially manufactured for the local program, and it is said that the show will afford a glimpse of atomic activities, at least in simulation, with spectacular effects never heretofore attempted in pyrotechnics. The concern with which the committee is working has been operated by the same family for more than 200 years, and it is claimed that they supplied the fireworks for the Fourth of July celebrations in the country as far back as the administration of George Washington.

The cost of the fireworks will be covered by a community collection and any surplus will be used to provide additional recreational facilities on the Playground. The committee points out that those who desire their donations to be used for these permanent improvements should indicate that fact when they make their contributions.
